Guerrilla Group Ends Reunion Here

CPYRGHT

America's first special forces guerrillas, the famed O.S.S. Detachment 101 that fought behind Japanese lines in World War II's China-Burma-India theater, met at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday to hear two old comrades in arms.

They were former Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs Roger Hillsman and Rep. Clark MacGregor (R-Minn.), both veterans of sabotage and intelligence operations against the Japanese.

Detachment 101, the granddaddy of the Defense Department's current Special Forces guerrilla teams operating in the jungles of South Viet-Nam and elsewhere in Southeast Asia, held its biennial national convention in Washington Friday and yesterday.

Its membership roster includes some of the Nation's key intelligence and military figures presently active in directing training and operations of Special Forces and intelligence groups.

Brig. Gen. William R. Peers, a former commander of the O.S.S. Rangers in the CBI Theater, is chairman of the board of the 101 Association. He now is on orders to the Pentagon, where he will be Special Assistant for Special Warfare Activity. Air Force Col. Julian Niemczyk is president.

The 101 Association members began their reunion by placing a wreath at the grave of President John F. Kennedy, who was instrumental in bringing their experience to fruition by creating the Special Forces.
